

Bradley Byrne – a lifelong resident of Southwest Alabama – is currently serving his fourth term in the U.S. House of Representatives. Bradley has committed much of his life to improving the quality of life for Alabamians dating back to his time on the State Board of Education, in the Alabama State Senate, and as Chancellor of Alabama's community college system.

Throughout his career, Bradley has been a fierce advocate for a smaller government that works for the American people. In Congress, Bradley is known to fight for a stronger military, our veterans, Alabama's rural communities, Alabama's farmers and foresters, and Alabama businesses and workers. He serves as a member of the House Committee on Armed Services and the House Committee on Education and Labor.

Byrne and his wife Rebecca reside in Fairhope and are active members of St. James Episcopal Church.
